Why we process your personal data (legal basis)

1. Contract

When you download our app, you have an opportunity to open a current account with our partner bank Solarisbank AG ("Solarisbank"). Certain personal data are necessary for entering into this agreement and for subsequent delivery of the services included. These data are processed by us, Solarisbank and any other third parties who help us provide you with financial services. The lawful basis for this processing is Art. 6 (1)(b) of the GDPR - processing which is necessary for the performance of a contract to which you are party or in order to take steps at your request prior to entering into a contract.

Please note that for many of our financial services and features, without the necessary personal data we will not be able to fulfil our contractual obligations, and therefore we will likely have to refuse entering into, or terminate a business relationship with you.

2. Legitimate interests

Sometimes we need to collect and process your personal data to safeguard our legitimate interests or the legitimate interests of third parties. In these cases we also process your data lawfully according to Article 6 (1)(f) of the GDPR. Examples of such processing include:

- Ensuring IT security
- Preventing criminal activity, such as fraud
- Push notifications or messages relating to your existing or new services and offers
- User experience analytics and optimization
- Personalization of services and tariff options
- Defense of and against legal claims

3. Consent

If you gave us consent to process your personal data for one or more specific purposes:

- Allowing us to show other clients that you use our bank
- Adding a photo avatar and allowing us to show it to other clients, for example in their contact lists, shared banking activities, or referral links (if you chose to become visible as a client)

- To access contacts on your device
- To place cookies on your device

These data are processed according to Article 6(1)(a) of the GDPR. You can withdraw your consent at any time, for example by removing the photo, or by accessing the settings in the application or your device to unselect these features. However, keep in mind that the processing which took place before withdrawal remains lawful.

4. Legal obligation

In cases where we or our partners are required to comply with any applicable laws, your personal data is processed according to Article 6(1)(c) of the GDPR - processing is necessary for compliance with a legal obligation to which the controller is subject.

Some examples of processing here include verification of your identity and age, prevention of money laundering and fraud, and tax reporting obligations.

When we process your personal data

Account opening.

In order for you to enter into an agreement with Solarisbank to open an account on your behalf, we collect the following personal data:

- Email
- Phone number
- Country of citizenship
- Country of residency
- Full name
- Date of birth
- Gender
- Whether you're a US tax resident
- Employment status
- Working area
- Address (where we can send your new bank card)
- Login credentials
- Internal client ID (we assign when you become a client)
- Device ID (also we assign)

Identity verification.

In order to open an account for you with Solarisbank, it is necessary to verify your identity. To accomplish this, we ask you to undergo a video identification procedure through a third party service provider. You may also need to provide a copy of your government-issued ID.

Card issue and delivery.

Once you've opened your bank account, you may wish to order a card. To make and deliver one to you, we process and transfer to Solarisbank and our service providers your name, address, phone number, email, device ID and the information about the bank account the card is tied to. If it is a virtual card, we process all of the data mentioned above, except your address.

Transfers and payments.

When you start using your account and bank cards, in addition to some of the personal data provided for opening of your account, we process the following:

- Transfers to and from your account (e.g. internal and external account numbers, IBAN (for external transfers), recipient name and/or phone number, amount, currency, date, client ID)
- Card transactions (e.g. merchant, amount, currency, location, date, method of payment, client ID)

Please note that when you complete a funds transfer to another person using their phone number, we must show the recipient's name and account number on your monthly or yearly statement, or any other bank document reflecting executed transfers to and from your account.

Money requests.

If you send a money request to another person or split a bill with your friends or family (up to 10 persons, and only those who allowed themselves to be visible as our clients), we will show your name to the recipient. Your name and account number will also appear in their monthly or yearly statement, or any other bank document reflecting executed transfers to and from their account.

Pocket sharing.

The owner of the pocket can share it with up to five other people. The names of these five people (name from client book or client name) and the details of all transactions they execute (e.g. date, merchant, location, amount) are visible to the owner of the pocket and other pocket users. The users are able to see each other and the shared pocket details only if they accept it. They also can see the details of the owner and each other's transactions, as well as the funds available in the account. Neither the owner, nor the users can see each other's card details.

Google Pay and Apple Pay.

Adding your card to Google Pay or Apple Pay involves processing your card information and Google or Apple wallet ID by us and our partner bank. Your card information is transferred to our partner's service provider Visa, where it is tokenized (basically, encrypted) and then, together with your address, phone number and the last four digits of the card number, we pass it on to Google or Apple. They will use that encrypted card data to perform transactions whenever you pay using your mobile phone.

Phone contacts.

If you choose to use the feature which allows you to quickly and easily transfer money to contacts in your mobile device's phonebook, or to share your pocket or cashback with friends, we will access your contacts in order to check if the contact you are trying to transfer money to is also our client. Please note that when we access your contacts and do the check, we do not transfer “raw” phone numbers from your phone - they are processed in such a way that only hashed (irreversibly changed into a unique unrecognizable sets of digits) versions, stored on your device, are used to match the number to an existing client. You can switch off access to contacts in your device’s settings at any time.

Cashback/Vivid Points Program.

In the context of our cashback/points program we process your client ID, as well as data about your transactions, including details received from payment processors about the amount, date, time and merchant. Additionally, in order to verify your transactions and correctly calculate your cashback amounts, we have to share with the merchants or our cashback partners some pseudonymised data about your transactions: date/time, operation amount and currency, merchant data (merchant category code, merchant id and merchant name in case of card operations, IBAN and recipient name in case of direct debits), country and city of purchase, acquirer id, terminal id. We process this data on the basis of our legitimate interest - it is in our interest to provide our customers with the best and highest cashback opportunities, and it is also beneficial to them. If you do not wish that we process or share your data for this purpose, you can object at any time. Just contact us by chat or by email at privacy@vivid.money. Please note that we do not sell or share your personal data with third parties for marketing purposes.

Subscription protection.

To help you balance your expenses and control your budget, we keep track of all regularly occurring payments that are charged to your account and let you know when one is coming up. That way you can take action in advance, in case there are limited funds in your account and the payment needs to be modified or cancelled. Here we may process such personal data as your client ID, bank account transaction and merchant details, date, amount, currency.

When you contact us.

When you contact us via support chat or by any other means, we may process such categories of personal data as your email, phone number, client ID, language, country, as well as any information about the standing of your account or details of your transactions, depending on the issue you are experiencing. We may also collect other information if you choose to share it with us. Please do not share any additional personal data or documents, either concerning yourself or other individuals, unless specifically requested by us.

When you visit our website, we may automatically collect some personal data from your device. This information may include your IP address, date and time of the request, time zone difference to GMT, browser language and version, operating system version or producer, information about your device, as well as some data about how you interact with our website (e.g. which website you came from, pages visited, links clicked). We do this to keep our website secure and to understand who visits it and which pages they find interesting, so we can improve the site and provide relevant content. Some of this data is collected using cookies. You can find more information about them in our Cookie Notice.

Analytics.

We process the personal data you provide us with, as well as the data created as a result of your use of our application, for analytics purposes. For example, we analyze how you interact with the app and make it more intuitive and easier for you to use, or to understand whether our products and services are customized to your needs so we can make changes if necessary, tweak the rates and conditions, and develop new products and services. In that case these data are stripped of direct identifiers, to provide an additional layer of protection. If you wish to object to this processing, please contact us at privacy@vivid.money.

Direct marketing.

From time to time we will contact you to tell you about our new products or services which we think may be of interest to you. This type of activity is considered direct marketing, and in this case we rely on your consent or our legitimate interest to process your personal data for this purpose. If you wish to withdraw your consent or object to this processing, you can switch off notifications in your app preference center, or click on the “unsubscribe” link at the bottom of the email you receive from us.
